STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE:

The Rogers House is architecturally significant as one of 3 Greek Revival/vernacular style houses in Lawrence County. Stylistic features include the undercut gallery supported on square columns, panelled wainscoting along the gallery and in the center hall, and double-leaf entrance framed by transom and sidelights.

Historically the house is associated with Elisha Rogers, an early settler of Lawrence County and owner of this property by 1830. By 1835 Rogers had acquired 160 acres in this section and eventually possessed all of the northeast and southeast quarters. His prosperity enabled him to build one of the county's finest houses, representative of the cotton planter's lifestyle in the flat bottom lands of the Pearl. The residence has been owned by the Rogers family since its construction. Elisha Rogers originally bought this property from John Ross, one of the county's earliest residents.
